All Saints' Day includes every man and women of goodwill

The month of November opens with the celebration of one of the richest feasts of the liturgical year, the Solemnity of All Saints. On this day, the Church celebrates the festival of God's holy city and the redeemed citizenry of heaven. The feast of All Saints celebrates all those who lived in the model of Christ and inspired their fellow men and women in a remarkable way. The saints made a great difference in the world, and even now they continue to inspire us to do great things. The saints are not simply nice decorations in the world of Christian spirituality. A struggling humanity needs their example and inspiration desperately.

Gerald Vann, a 20th century English spiritual writer, puts this well when he writes: "For the church is, and has always been, a net that has caught all sorts of fish. She is, and has always been, a strange combination of the drab and the magnificent, the squalid and the heroic, the shabby and the beautiful. Her garden has produced both weeds and flowers. The saints are the flowers, and we must admit that without them the sanctity of the Church would not be very much in evidence. It is through them that Christ's light shines to the nations, and it is in them that Christians see what holiness really means. It is no wonder then that the Church takes pride in those noble examples of Christian living, and boldly proclaims their greatness to the world."

The saintly men and women do not exist in a world beyond or disconnected from ours, but are part of the very fabric of our existence. We live our lives happily only in community and our lives are profitable only when directed to the up – building of the human community. We are saved and brought to final fulfillment not by anything we ourselves are able to do – but by the God of mercy and redemption, and through the assistance of countless others in the spiritual community of God's people. The saints exist for us and with us. We venerate them not as distant historical figures but as brothers and sisters with whom we are joined in a living communion.

The great French writer Paul Claudel pointed out that the treasures of all the saints are at our disposal. "All the saints and the angels belong to us. We can use the intelligence of St. Thomas, the right arm of St. Michael, the hearts of Joan of Arc and Catherine of Siena, and all the hidden resources which have only to be touched to be set in action. . . . The heroism of the missionary, the inspiration of the Doctors of the Church, the generosity of the martyrs, the genius of the artists, the burning prayer of the Poor Clares and Carmelites – it is as if all that were ourselves; it is ourselves."

Like all great feasts of the liturgical year, the Solemnity of All Saints is a celebration of the Church living in history now. The stories of the saints are our stories, and our own little stories are ennobled and exalted by becoming part of the great Christian story. In this truth we should find great hope and encouragement. By Msgr. Mannion is pastor emeritus of St. Vincent de Paul parish in Salt Lake City.

¡Feliz Solemnidad de Todos los Santos!

El 1 de noviembre la Iglesia Católica se llena de alegría al celebrar la Solemnidad de Todos los Santos, tanto aquellos conocidos como los desconocidos, que con su vida son ejemplo de que sí es posible llegar al cielo.

“Hoy nosotros estamos inmersos con el espíritu entre esta muchedumbre innumerable de santos, de salvados, los cuales, a partir del justo Abel, hasta el que quizá está muriendo en este momento en alguna parte del mundo, nos rodean, nos animan, y cantan todos juntos un poderoso himno de gloria”, decía San Juan Pablo II un primero de noviembre de 1980.

Esta celebración tuvo sus orígenes por el siglo IV debido a la gran cantidad de mártires en la Iglesia. Más adelante el 13 de mayo del 610 el Papa Bonifacio IV dedica el Panteón romano al culto cristiano, colocando de titulares a la Bienaventurada Madre de Dios y a todos los mártires. Es así que se les empieza a festejar en esta fecha.

Posteriormente el Papa Gregorio IV, en el siglo VII, trasladó la fiesta al 1 de noviembre, muy probablemente para contrarrestar la celebración pagana del “Samhain” o año nuevo celta (en la actualidad Halloween) que se celebra la noche del 31 de octubre.

En el 2013 el Papa Francisco, ante una gran multitud de gente, exhortó: “Dios te dice: no tengas miedo de la santidad, no tengas miedo de apuntar alto, de dejarte amar y purificar por Dios, no tengas miedo de dejarte guiar por el Espíritu Santo. Dejémonos contagiar por la santidad de Dios”. Tomado de Acipresa.

Prayer for the One hundred and Twenty- fifth Anniversary

Most holy and loving Father, you are the reason for our beginning and the end to which we aspire. As we celebrate 125 years as a diocese, we are grateful for the blessings of our past and look with joyful hearts toward our future. Bring us together, in faith and love, through all that is to come. Guide us as we reaffirm our commitment to each other, to your Church in Idaho and around the world, and to our mission as disciples of your Son, our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom we offer our prayer with the help of your Holy Spirit. Amen.
